In December 2004 singer/songwriter kelt embarked on a small recording project that would, in time, become the first steps in a long journey. These early recordings found their way into the hands of Popboomerang Record's founder Scott Thurling. Following a brief visit to Melbourne, a deal was signed and production began on recordings for a full length album.

Adopting the philosophy that life is not a race, kelt has taken his time delivering this impressive debut album. With early recording taking place in an old shack on the outer suburbs of Brisbane and final sessions occurring in Melbourne's Eastern Bloc Studios, this album has benefited from both the variety of recording environments and the many talented people involved in its production.

Refreshingly original, tomorrow is another today is a stunning collection of honest and heartfelt tunes. This is definitely an album to be discovered in 2007.

Pure. Uplifting. Depressing. Brilliant
